NCCU Threat Assessment and Management Team Policy

Purpose

- This policy establishes a framework for timely and effective interventions for individuals within the NCCU community who may pose credible or potential threats of harm to others or who may disrupt the University's lawful activities and educational processes.

Scope

- This policy applies to all members of the North Carolina Central University (NCCU) community, including students, faculty, staff, and visitors. It governs the processes and procedures related to identifying, assessing, and managing potential and actual threats to the safety and security of the campus community.
- The policy encompasses all behaviors and actions, whether occurring on-campus or off-campus, that may pose a risk to individuals or disrupt the University's educational mission.
- This policy is applicable in all situations where there is a concern for the well-being of a member of the University community and may be implemented in conjunction with other relevant University policies and legal requirements.

NCCU Threat Assessment and Management Team Policy

Mission

- The Threat Assessment and Management Team (TAMT) is a multidisciplinary team appointed by the Chancellor, tasked with assessing and establishing interventions for individuals in the University community who pose potential or actual threats of harm to others. Additionally, the TAMT oversees the review and ongoing monitoring of these safety interventions.
